1. Qn No.10 – Sneha is a Senior Manager working for a big reputed hospital chain in a mid-sized city. She has been made in-charge of the new super speciality center that the hospital is building with state of the art equipment and world class medical facilities. The building has been reconstructed and she is starting the process of procurement for various equipment and machines. As the head of the committee responsible for procurement, she has invited bids from all the interested reputed vendors dealing in medical equipment. She notices that her brother, who is a well-known supplier in this domain, has also sent his expression of interest. Since the hospital is privately owned, it is not mandatory for her to select only the lower bidder. Also, she is aware that her brother’s company has been facing some financial difficulties and a big supply order will help

Freshers Test 5. Qn.No 10 – Jatin Kumar, a dedicated civil servant, is a Senior Procurement Officer in the State Government’s Public Works Department (PWD). Known for his integrity and commitment to transparency, he has always upheld the highest ethical standards in his work. His responsibilities include:

- Overseeing the tendering process for various infrastructure projects.
- Ensuring compliance with legal and regulatory standards.

- Maintaining fair competition among bidders.

The Department is currently inviting tenders for a significant infrastructure project: building a new highway that promises to boost the local economy and improve public services.

2. him recover. At the same time, allocating the contract to her brother might bring charges of favouritism against her and tarnish her image. The hospital management trusts her fully and would support any decision of hers.
- What should be Sneha's course of action?
 - How would she justify what she chooses to do?
 - In this case, how is medical ethics compromised with vested personal interest?

As Jatin diligently reviewed the submitted bids, he encountered disturbing evidence that suggests the tender process has been manipulated. While cross-checking the bid documents against the procurement guidelines, he noticed inconsistencies in one particular bid. The bid from Shree Constructions, a relatively new company owned by a distant relative of the state's Transport Minister, stands out. Despite being a new entrant, the bid was remarkably precise, addressing every intricate detail of the project requirements in a way that typically requires insider knowledge.

Jatin decides to investigate deeper. He retrieves email correspondences and internal memos using his access to the department's secure procurement management system. In the emails, he finds clear indications that confidential information about the bid requirements was shared with Shree Constructions. High-ranking officials, including his direct superiors, are implicated in this exchange, showcasing a wellorchestrated plan to ensure the company's bid outshines others. (250 words, 20 marks)

- What are the ethical issues involved in the above case?
- What are the options available to Jatin?
- Evaluate the pros and cons of the options and advice Jatin on the chosen course of action.

3. Qn No.12 – Dr. Srinivasan is a senior scientist working for a reputed biotechnology company known for its cutting-edge research in pharmaceuticals. Dr. Srinivasan is heading a research team working on a new drug aimed at treating a rapidly spreading variant of a new viral infectious disease. The disease has been rapidly spreading across the world and the cases reported in the country are increasing. There is huge pressure on Dr.Srinivasan's team to expedite the trials for the drug as there is significant market for it, and the company wants to get the first-mover advantage in the market. During a team meeting, some senior team members suggest some shortcut for expediting the clinical trials for the drug and for getting the requisite approvals. These include manipulating data to exclude some negative outcomes and selectively reporting positive results, foregoing the process of informed consent and using compounds already patented by a rival company, rather than developing one's own component. Dr.Srinivasan is not comfortable taking such shortcuts, at the same time he realises meeting the targets is impossible without using these means.

- What would you do in such a situation?
- Examine your options and consequences in the light of this ethical questions involved.
- How can data ethics and drug ethics save humanity at large in such a scenario?

Mock Test GS IV. Qn.No 11 – A professor, seeking to secure funding for her medical research on the causes and treatments of a specific disease, accepted a substantial multi-year grant from a prominent pharmaceutical company. The research aimed to test the efficacy of various medicines currently available on the market, including a drug produced by the same pharmaceutical company. The study's findings indicated that the company's drug had a positive therapeutic effect. However, the research also contained some ambiguous data that could be interpreted as indicating a potential negative side effect on certain patients.

As stipulated in the grant agreement, the professor was required to submit a preliminary draft of her research report to the pharmaceutical company for review and feedback. Upon reviewing the report, the company requested that the professor consider omitting the ambiguous data, arguing that it could reflect poorly on the company and that the data was not robust enough to be conclusive. The professor now faces a dilemma, as she has exhausted the current grant funding and will need additional financial support to continue her research. The pharmaceutical company remains an obvious potential source for this future funding.

An added ethical concern involves the integrity of academic research. If the professor decides to omit the ambiguous data, this action could compromise the transparency and objectivity of the research, potentially misleading the scientific community and the public. She was wondering about her next steps. (20 marks, 250 words)

- What are the potential consequences of removing ambiguous data from the research report on both the scientific community and public health? Explain
